

compacer takes over gusti software

Integration specialist completes its portfolio and expands its internationality

Gärtringen, 1st of September 2020 – The previous partnership between compacer GmbH and the Dutch software company gusti software has now become a merger. Gusti software has been part of the integration specialist compacer since the beginning of August.

The Dutch software company gusti software has also been part of the eurodata group for five years now. The core business of gusti software is system integration and the exchange of structured information such as Edifact, ANSI-X12 and XML, i.e. digital commercial documents. With this portfolio and that of compacer GmbH, which specialises in IoT topics in addition to the integration and automation of business-critical processes, the range of services is rounded off.

Fred van Scheppingen, managing director of gusti software, is pleased to know that his life's work is in good hands: "For years we have been working closely with our colleagues at compacer and have exchanged views on current market developments. I have come to know compacer as a reliable and innovative partner and I am sure that the business will continue in my spirit and even expand with new solutions".

Lumir Boureau, managing director of compacer GmbH, has a similar view: "The Dutch team of gusti software offers us an excellent opportunity not only to expand our EDI business and our integration projects internationally, but also to establish our IoT solutions. The Benelux market is easier to serve from the Netherlands than from Baden-Württemberg. In addition, the EDI expertise of our colleagues is an enrichment for the entire team and we look forward to continuing to serve existing gusti software customers with our services".
